friends
don't let friends drive drunk.

It is such a simple concept: IF YOU DRINK EVEN ONE DRINK, hand the keys to a sober driver! The Holton Police Department has a zero tolerance policy on intoxicated drivers. If you drink, don't drive! It's not only stupid to do, it's the law and YOU WILL be arrested, have to go to jail, attend court, pay heavy fines and it will be on your driving record for the rest of your life! So think about these things before you make the wrong decision.

No tolerance! - No excuses!

HISTORY

Established by a group of young women in 1897, Holton's Beck-Bookman Library continues a strong tradition of community service. Founded by members of the all volunteer Bookman Club, the library now operates as a vital and vibrant hub of the community.

The Bookman Club organized in 1896

From a child's first picture book to accessing the World Wide Web, Beck-Bookman Library provides an invaluable resource to community members of all ages. An extensive collection (books, periodicals, large print books, books on tape/CD and videos/DVD's) are available in a comfortable, modern and fully accessible setting.

Bookman Club Today!

With a bequest from the Jesse Bender Family and a generous trust from Edward S. Beck, former managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, the current library facility was built and occupied in 1952. The library is named in honor of the memory of Major and Mrs. M. M. Beck, pioneer residents of the town, and the Bookman Club. The children's room is named The Bender Room in honor of the Bender Family. A lovely addition was built in 1995 and most recently a new circulation desk and computer stations were added in December of 2004. The library now houses a collection of 30,200 materials.

MISSION

The library is supported by municipal, county, and state funding as well as charitable gifts and trusts. It is governed by a seven-member board; administrative functions are directed by the library.

Board of Trustees:

Clarence Pfeiffer, President

Karen Ford, Vice President

Dee Ann Sheldon, Secretary

Tom Davies, Treasurer

Karen Leiker, Mary Morford

Board Meeting Time:

Third Tuesday evening of each month,
7 p.m., at the library
